The clear glass perfume was the second version of the Vigny "Le Golliwogg" perfume produced from the 1920's into the 1930's. The bottle design and name are based on a character created by Englishwoman, Florence K. Upton around the turn of the century. The bottle, itself, was made by Verreries Brosse. This darling, all-glass piece remains in superb condition. And is in its rarely-found, pink-satin-lined, cardboard box which is also labeled "Vigny, Paris" on one of its panels. The Golliwogg's head is the perfume stopper (which presently is quite securely affixed in place), and the facial enameling/painting remains as clear and crisp as the day it was applied! Even his black furry hair retains its vibrant, original, dark tones! The Golly's glass collar is enameled/painted white with black polka dots and his feet are accented in black.
