Outsider Art Willie Jinks - Shelf 23 Animal Jaw Bone - Shelf 3

- Willie jinks outsider artist painting signed. This measures about 12 inch by 16 in. It is done on wood please see photos for details.
- Willie Jinks (1921 - 2012), who was a self-taught Black artist from Atlanta, GA. Jinks was born into a sharecropper family in Locust Grove, Georgia, and was one of 13 children. He eventually moved to Atlanta as a young man, where he began working for the department of sanitation. Later in life, and while on the job, Jinks began salvaging and collecting junk found on the job to make into art.
- In the artist's own words, "People throws this stuff out. I get in my van and go collect it, and bring it back to the Hobby Shop". His "Hobby Shop" was a small shed in the backyard that eventually overflowed to encompass his home and yard. During his prolific life, Willie Jinks created many whirligigs for his front yard and also made a large number of paintings depicting his memories of life growing up in rural Georgia, animals, fantastical creatures and recreations of funny stories he'd heard, which were executed on found doors, sheet metal, plywood, windows, paper and chipboard. Jink's fascination with animals, nature, and mechanical things is visible throughout all of his artwork, and he is most famous for his "Hoperman" ("Hobbyman") character, who shows up in much of his work and the cryptic writing on most of his pieces and was most likely a reference to himself, "The Hobby Man". - credit to Shrine NYC.
